CHARLOTTE AMALIE, St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands – March 5, 2015 - The Virgin Islands Economic Development Authority's Disaster Small-Mid-sized Enterprises Incubation Program and the Small Business Camp will host a Small Business Camp Weekend training program for entrepreneurs, executives, non-profit leaders, and anyone that has a business idea. This free program will be held at the Governor Juan F. Luis Hospital, Cardiac Center, 4007 Estate Diamond Ruby Basement - Conference Center, St. Croix, U.S. Virgin Islands on Friday, March 6, 2015 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m.; Saturday, March 7, 2015 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; and on Sunday, March 8, 2015 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

During the Small Business Camp Weekend, attendees will learn how to generate sales online, package their ideas for profit, write a book in a weekend, build a team, attract investors, and much more. This is the second in a series of free Small Business Camp Weekend training programs that will be conducted periodically on St. Croix by its instructor Andrew Morrison, the president of Small Business Camp.

According to VIEDA's Chief Executive Officer Percival E. Clouden, "This Small Business Camp Weekend will again be another tremendous opportunity for existing and potential entrepreneurs to learn how to take their business ideas and aspirations to the next level. Andrew Morrison continues to inspire individuals to reach their potential as they seek to achieve their entrepreneurial goals."

Small Business Camp is an entrepreneurial training and marketing services firm that provides high-impact strategies for entrepreneurs, executives and non-profit leaders. The Small Business Camp Weekend will be a highly engaging, energetic, thought-provoking, hands-on training free program in which Morrison will share his knowledge on entrepreneurship with attendees on St. Croix.

The Small Business Camp Weekend is brought to the U.S. Virgin Islands community by the VIEDA and is funded by the U. S. Department of Commerce- Economic Development Administration (EDA).
